STATE INTERVIEWS IN ALABAMA NEGRO LYNCHING

YANKS KEEP ORDER IN DALMATIAN CITY; FIUME ABLAZE WITH FLAGS; POET-AVIATOR FEELS CONFIDENT

FEELING RUNS HIGH BETWEEN ITALIANS AND JUGO-SLAVS; AMERICANS FORCED TO INTERVENE; FRONTIER CLOSED; PARLIAMENT DIS-SOLVED; MINISTERIAL CRISIS, OPENS BREAK WHICH IS APPARENTLY IRRE-MEDIABLE.

(By Associated Press)
Rome, Sept. 30.—American soldiers are maintaining order in the city of Spalato, Dalmatia, where Rear Admiral Phillip Andrews is stationed with his flagship, the Pittsburgh, according to reports reaching this city. It is indicated in reports that feeling is running high in Spalato and that the Americans have been forced to intervene between the Italians and Jugo-Slavs.

The Fiume issue will be laid before the Italian people November 16, together with the other matters on which the government wishes to obtain a mandate. The parliament was dissolved yesterday and will be reassembled December 1.

Orders closing the Jugo-Slav frontier have led the chief of staff of the 26th Italian regular army corps at Abbazia to interview Captain d'Annunzio's chief of staff and discuss measures to be taken. This has resulted in the sending of some of Captain d'Annunzio's volunteers to hold the armistice line, according to the Epoca, which adds "the event shows the cordial collaboration between the d'Annunzio troops and the regulars."

Plume Blockade Severe.
The correspondent of the Epoca, says the blockade of Plume is more severe than formerly, even mail being held at the frontier. There is food sufficient for three months for the population of Plume. Comment on the Home situation the Epoca says:

"The ministerial crisis has opened a break between Premier Nitti and the Foreign Minister Tittoni which is apparently irremediable. The ministry differs widely on questions of military and naval policy. The ministry will take place this morning."

Fiume Ablaze With Flags.
Rome, Sept. 30.—Fiume is ablaze with flags, her streets are filled with marching soldiers and her air is thronged with the confidence flag of the men, who under the command of Capt. Gabriele d'Annunzio, marched into the city and still firmly hold it.

The correspondent reached Plume last night from Trieste being buried in the confusion of the city. The motive for the last part of the journey to avoid guards along the way.

Soldiers are everywhere in the city. Men from all regiments, arms and branches of the service, are thousands here. Among them are thousands of the men wearing three of four service medals as well as those in civilian clothes. One lieutenant on the staff of the city, Captain d'Annunzio wears six or seven stripes while men are frequently four or five stripes are frequently met.

There is an air of confidence among the volunteers who, wearing their gray uniforms, march much as they would in Rome. Strict attention is paid to the military salute.

Two companies of Alpini passed down a street today on their way to guard the city and the men sang patriotic songs.

Post-Annunzio Has Fine Office.
Established in the governor's palace which has been converted into a veritable general staff building, filled with general staff departments. The private office of the poet-aviator overlooks the city. The building is the finest in Plume.

Displayed in the streets are the arms of the most important cities of Italy while in the Piazza Dante is a painting of the map of Italy. A painting of the map of Italy is a painting of the map of Italy. A painting of the map of Italy is a painting of the map of Italy.

Portraits of King Victor Emmanuel, General Diaz, and Giuseppe Garibaldi, the immortal Italian patriots, are shown everywhere. On the walls of the houses are portraits of the Italian patriots, and on the walls of the houses are portraits of the Italian patriots.

There is no evidence of traffic in the harbor. The Italian dreadnaughts are anchored in the harbor, and the American dreadnaughts are anchored in the harbor. The Italian dreadnaughts are anchored in the harbor, and the American dreadnaughts are anchored in the harbor.

Although no news is reaching the outside world, the Italians here are confident of winning their fight. There seems to be plenty of food.

Raise for Episcopal Clergy Urged at Detroit Meeting
Detroit, Mich., Sept. 30.—Increased salaries for Episcopal clergy and lay workers were to come before the council of domestic mission bishops which opened here today. The meeting is preliminary to the triennial general council of the Protestant Episcopal church of the United States which begins next week.

A spokesman said Bishop Herman Page, Spokane, Wash., "salaries are so low that it is becoming difficult to obtain men for these fields. Salaries have not been raised for three years. The standard is about $1,200 a year, scarcely enough to keep a single man in these times, to say nothing of a man with a family."

Plant In Full Operation.
Baltimore, Sept. 28.—The Sparrows Point plant of the Bethlehem Steel company, the only steel plant in the valley which shows signs of attempting to reopen, the entrance of groups of workers yesterday and today kept the mill in operation.

The inclusion of the Bethlehem Steel company's plant into the strike area has caused a serious situation in the scope of the conflicting claims of the opposing sides. The ninth day of the great struggle between the strikers and the plant owners is virtually unchanged.

Plant Closes "For Repairs."
No definite developments were reported today from the Pittsburgh district where the only positive item from the Chicago field was the official statement from the American Steel and Tube company that its plant, and the plant of the American Steel and Tube company, would be closed down within the week "for repairs."

Several minor disturbances in the night led to a fear that serious disorder was possible and a threat that state or federal troops might be summoned.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 30.—The future prosperity of the United States rests upon continuation of foreign trade, Robert F. Maddox, Atlanta, president of the American Bankers' association, asserted in opening the general business session of the association's annual convention here today.

Mr. Maddox pointed out that exports have declined rapidly in the last two months, and emphasized that even though the conditions are not ideal, it is essential to continue trade with foreign nations, even though it is necessary for the United States to provide additional credits to European countries.

By giving all employees a larger share in the profits and a greater voice in the management of the business, he said, "labor unions will be broken up."

Mr. Maddox said he hoped congress would not on the basis of the present situation turn its attention to the railroads.

CONGRESS RECORD.
How great is the constructive program which congress has mapped out and has already in large part accomplished is indicated in a statement which has been issued by Representative Mondell, majority leader of the house. He enumerates the measures which have been passed and sets forth a great amount of work which the republicans have already accomplished. He points out that vast reductions have been made in government expenditures, that steps have been taken to reduce the high cost of living and that many large problems of policy for the reconstruction period involving the railroads, the merchant marine, the army, a budget system and other matters are being worked out as speedily as possible.

Mr. Mondell's statement not only reveals the enormous amount of work which this congress has done and is doing, but it is an answer to those who are seeking to belittle the constructive achievement of the house and senate.

He emphasizes the reductions in appropriations, the adoption of the suffrage amendment, the passage by the house of the water power bill, the initiation of tariff legislation and the passage of measures for the welfare of soldiers.

"At the beginning of the present special session of congress," says Mr. Mondell's statement, "a conference of the republican members of the house declared it to be the purpose of the republican majority to proceed at once to the orderly, thorough and careful consideration of a constructive program of legislation—and this seems an opportune time to call attention to the progress thus far made in carrying out of the definite promises made at that time. We hope that the entire program thus far outlined may be well under way toward final completion before the close of the present extra session."

"In an effort to reduce the high cost of living the house demanded and compelled the sale of surplus army supplies, including not only food stuffs, but articles of wearing apparel, thus not only aiding in lowering living costs, but ultimately bringing several hundred million dollars into the federal treasury. The house and senate passed bills strengthening the food control act, extending its provisions and increasing the penalties for hoarding and profiteering. The house has appropriated large sums to aid the department of justice and other departments of the government in the enforcement of the laws against profiteering and in the prosecution of activities intended to reduce the high cost of living. The house will, within a few days, consider a bill aimed to aid in reducing living costs through the regulation of the cold storage of food-stuffs."

After referring to achievements in cutting appropriations, in passing suffrage measures for the welfare of soldiers, and other matters, Mr. Mondell said:

"Early consideration of tariff legislation was promised with a view to the reduction of domestic taxation and of providing adequate protection to American labor and industries. The house has passed a bill repealing the obnoxious taxes on soft drinks, soda water and ice cream, and bills providing for the protection necessary under present conditions for metals, which our experience with the war proved vital—such as the tungsten, lead and zinc ores."

"Bills are on the calendar proposing legislation necessary to maintain the coal tar dye, and other vital industries built up during the war, the protection of which is necessary to the public welfare. Further legislation for the reduction of taxes and the protection of American industries and labor are under consideration."

"The conference promised measures to conserve the welfare of our returning soldiers. The congress promptly provided more liberal provisions for the vocational training and rehabilitation of wounded soldiers and made liberal appropriations for the same. The house recently passed a comprehensive bill amending the war risk act and liberalizing its provisions with regard to soldiers' insurance and compensation for wounds and injuries."

"Early consideration of railway and transportation problems was promised. Committees of both the house and senate have long been continuously considering these questions and the house committee in charge of the matter will report its recommendations at the earliest possible moment consistent with a thorough consideration of the tremendously important questions involved."

"The consideration of a military policy and measures necessary for the earliest possible return of our soldiers, was a part of the program. The sharp reductions made in the appropriations for the military establishment compels the speediest return of our soldiers consistent with our national obligations. The military committees of the house and senate are considering the many problems of a permanent military policy. The consideration of a comprehensive merchant marine policy was a part of the program. The committees of the house and senate having these matters in charge have been giving diligent attention and consideration to the various phases and features of this great problem."

"Budget legislation is an important part of the proposed program. Budget committees have been provided and the intricate and important questions involved in legislation of this character are being carefully considered and will, in due course, be placed before congress for its consideration."

STORE VEGETABLES FOR WINTER USE.
Jack Frost soon will kill most of the tender garden crops, even in the South, and home gardeners are advised not to delay in caring for vegetables now in the garden.

A storage cellar or outdoor pit is, of course, the most desirable place to store vegetables, but not every home gardener has a storage cellar or pit at his disposal and some simple and inexpensive method must be provided. A very effective storage, recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture, may be made by partially burying a wooden box or a large barrel on its side in a well-drained spot in the garden. Irish potatoes, carrots, parsnips, turnips, beets, and winter radishes can be stored in this manner. Cabbage, as a rule, can be stored to best advantage by burying it in the ground, while celery can be placed in a trench and covered with boards and straw or leaves, with an outer layer of soil to keep out frost. Sweet potatoes should always be stored in a warm, dry place,

JUST FOLKS

THE AGE OF INK.
Swiftly the changes come. Each day
Sees some lost beauty blown away
And some new touch of lovely grace
Come into life to take its place.
The little babe that once we had
One morning woke a regal lad:
The babe that we had put to bed
Out of our arms and lives had fled.

J'ocks vanished from our cradle then,
Ne'er to be worn or seen again,
And in his knickerbocker pride
He boasted pockets at each side
And stored them deep with various things—
Stones, tops and jacks and colored strings;
'Then for a time we claimed the joy
Of calling him our little boy.

Brief was the reign of such a spell.
One morning sounded out a bell,
With tears I saw her brown eyes swim
And knew that it was calling him.
Time, the harsh master of us all,
Was bidding him to heed his call:
This shadow fell across life's pool—
Our boy was on his way to school.

Our little boy! And still we dreamed.
For such a little boy he seemed!
And yesterday, with eyes aglow
Like one who has just come to know
Some great and unexpected bliss,
He bounded in, announcing this:
'Oh Dad! Oh Ma! say what d'you think?
This year we're going to write with ink!'

Here was a change I'd not foresee,
Another step from what has been.
I paused a little while to think
About this elder age of ink—
What follows this great step, thought I?
What next shall come as time goes by?
And something said: "His pathway leads Unto the day he'll write with dew."

such as a room over the kitchen where there will be plenty of both heat and ventilation.
If no cellar or storage pit is available, a temporary storage should be provided at once, and the various vegetables that are adapted to storage should be cared for before it gets cold enough to injure them.

"I Don't Care About My Wagon, But Look at Them Eggs an' Milk Y' Busted!"

Uncle Sam's Best Seller

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN, Director
Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau,
Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 30.—Of all the advertisements which our embattled government laid upon us during the war, the one that impressed us most deeply was the admonition: "Can."

We saved daylight and money and babies, we bought drift stamps and liberty bonds, we swatted flies and pro-Germans, we gave to Sunday motoring and candy. We were gouged, robbed and bamboozled, but we stood it because the government said we had to. We proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that the American people are not only the freest in the world, but also the most in the world to lead by the nose.

But of all these tricks we learned during the war, there is only one that in any considerable degree stayed with us. That is the trick of canning.

This idea of having a large supply of fruits and vegetables which are in the cupboard against the coming of winter, somehow appeals to us. Maybe it is just the ancient animal instinct to lay up something against the coming of cold weather. Maybe it is a recrudescence of the forethought that our pioneering ancestors had to use. It is a desire to get even with that Greek on the corner who soaks us a dime for an apple. And maybe the impulse comes from our innards, such as it is, and long have been in need of more garden peas and fresh fruit than most of us can afford to buy.

We can't buy them in Canada. Anyway, we not only canned in war because we had to, but now we are canning in peace because we can. The story of the canning campaign is told concisely in the record of the distribution of its text-book. Two years ago the department of agriculture got out Farmers' Bulletin 839, which has come to be recognized as the standard publication of the government on canning. It has printed, under the stimulus of constant demand, 2,000,000 copies of this bulletin. The demand is such that it is sure that it will have to print hundreds of thousands more. This call for more copies is more than for anything that the department or any other agency of the government has ever printed. It is the government's oldest and best-selling book. It has been based five separate times privately published and sold. The material that it offers has been incorporated in the text of at least 12 other household books. Because the government has not been able to meet the public demand, state colleges and other institutions have printed and distributed three million copies of the instructions it contains. There is hardly a magazine or a newspaper in the nation that has not borrowed copy freely from its pages.

O. H. Benson, specialist in charge of club work for the department of agriculture, recently attended the eastern states exposition at Springfield, Mass. The department had an exhibit there. A placard suggested that anybody interested in any of the branches of government work represented might get a bulletin on it for the asking. Seven people asked for the canning bulletin for every one who asked for the next most popular publication. A wire was sent for 3,000 of these bulletins and they were distributed to individuals in a single day.

Corps of Experts Trained.
Last year the government provided, in the interests of war economy, half a million dollars to be used in teaching the public to conserve its food supply by canning and drying. That fund made it possible to train a great corps of experts and send them forth to carry the message to the masters. The department at Washington trained a canning corps and sent representatives to every state. They trained subsidiary state corps. These in turn sent their trained people into every county.

This year, the war being over, adequate funds have not been available to continue the work on this scale. But the advertising has been done and the canning idea has been established. The people are converted to it. They want more definite information and so, in state and interstate fairs of the present summer and fall—such fairs as that at Sioux City where 12 states gathered, or that at Spokane which represented all the northwestern states—there has been for canning information. The exhibits of canned products have been leading attractions. The idea has been carried over into the war, our country into Canada. The provinces of Ontario and Manitoba have borrowed Farmers' Bulletin 839, and have printed it and broadcasted it.

In addition to the handicap of restricted appropriations this year, the advocates of canning have faced the added difficulty of national shortage of sugar. The big canners have had no trouble in getting all the sugar they want. The price is controlled and therefore not particularly high. They buy direct from the refiners.

Sugar Causes Trouble.
But the individual householder has had trouble over the sugar question, too.

This has largely been due to the difference of the grocer. He has been allowed only a certain margin of profit on sugar. That margin of profit is in the hands of the other articles he handles. He therefore wants to do as little sugar business as possible—to drive this less profitable trade to the competitor who wants to use all the convenience he can. He has made it so difficult for the customer that he has discouraged the putting up of fruit.

But it is possible to put up fruit without sugar. Farmers' Bulletin 839 has told hundreds of thousands of housewives how to do this. Altogether the canning for the season just passed is estimated to have amounted to 40 percent of the total of the summer of 1918, accomplished under the stimulus of actual war. That is regarded as pretty fair and as holding out a good promise for the future when the sugar supply gets back to normal.

A BOHEMIAN BOOK SHOP.
Washington Square bookshop, in its basement home on West Eighth street, New York, is a colorful place, from its small, shabby cases filled with exotic periodicals which greet you as you descend the crooked steps to the wood block prints and books which deck its walls and hope you will buy them. If you cannot buy them you need not feel embarrassed for this is first of all a friendly book shop. He who cannot buy a book may stand on the ledge and read, which every true book shop habitué knows is the best way to get acquainted with a book. There are even comfortable wicker chairs and wooden benches for those who wish to spend the evening. And a long low table in the middle of the first room, piled with the latest poetry, the worth-while novels and the last word in psycho-analysis, are tempting invitations to stay.

Perhaps the shop has such a sympathetic atmosphere because its proprietor, Edmont Arens, is himself a poet and critic as well as the author of many unvarnished volumes of plays and verse; while his wife, Josephine Bell, is known to fame as one of the best of free-verse poets. It lends a certain air of culture to the transaction, say what you will, to be sold your book by a dreamy-eyed poet or a scarting lady, instead of by the usual dapper book clerk.

Village celebrities frequently drift in here of an evening and hold forth in groups. Harry Kemp, the village poet, is often seen, bare-headed and beaming, in his corduroy suit, ready to talk feelings of love or give you the exact figures on the sale of his latest book. Charlie Wood occasionally ambles in, enunciating audacious epigrams in a high-pitched manner. Young artists, poets, publishers of mushroom magazines, congregate here and feel sorry for the best of the world, and never here, in a word, you are emphatically among highbrows, but young and friendly highbrows, who have a good time in spite of their mental elevation.

WHO'S WHO in the Daily News

EDWARD WILLIAM BOK
Edward William Bok, editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, for thirty years will retire on January 1. He will be succeeded by H. O. Davis of Los Angeles, managing editor of the Journal.

Mr. Bok resigned last December, but the board of directors of the Curtis Publishing Company delayed acceptance on account of the difficulty in getting a successor. The resignation will apply only to Mr. Bok's editorship, and he will continue as a vice-president of the Curtis Publishing Company and will retain his place on the directorate.

Mr. Bok became the editor of the Ladies' Home Journal in October 1889. Five years ago, when Mr. Bok completed twenty-five years as editor of the magazine he desired to retire, but the board would not listen to it. Three years ago he again determined to retire, but when the United States entered the war he remained at his post as a patriotic duty.

Mr. Bok says he has been working hard for forty-three years, and never has been out of a job in that time. He began as a poor boy, and now that he has earned a rest he intends to make the most of it, he announces.

He was born in Hilder, Netherlands, in 1848. He came to the U. S. at the age of six and lived with his parents in Brooklyn. He came to Brooklyn, Minn., at nineteen and at twenty-one he was acting as a stenographer. Then for five years he conducted what he called the Bok Syndicate Press. In 1889 he became editor-in-chief of the Ladies' Home Journal. Two years later he was made vice-president of the Curtis Publishing Company.

THE WISHING PLANE

"We've seen how the country folk live and how the farms in Italy look, so I think we'd better see some of the cities next," said Captain Bravo to Jack and Jane and Laddie one morning when they had been at Como's house many days. Of course the children thought so, too, so that afternoon all bade Como and his father and mother goodby and sailed away.

"We're going first to the city the Italian people believe to be the pret-

"No, but it is on what is called the Bay of Naples, which opens into a sea called the Tyrrhenian sea. Naples is one of the big ports of Italy and most of the big ships that bring food and other things from America and other countries to Italy land there. During the war many American warships were stationed in the bay, ready to help the soldiers on land if necessary. There usually is at least one United States warship in the harbor, even during peace times."

The plane flew over many cities on its way and when Captain Bravo announced that the beautiful city below them at one time of the journey was Rome Jane and Jack wondered why the captain wasn't stopping there. Laddiecar must have noticed the puzzled look on their faces, so she said:

"Probably, before we leave Italy, we will spend several days in Rome because it is a famous old city with many wonderful relics of olden times in it. Just now, though, Captain Bravo wants to go direct to Naples because he left orders at Brest to forward all messages for him and letters for you little folks and myself to the American offices in Naples."

This satisfied the little folks so they thought no more about the cities through which they passed. It had been a long time since they had heard from home and they were anxious to hear from them. Had Jack and Jane the least idea of what was to happen to them in the beautiful city of Naples they wouldn't have been quite so eager to get to the city, I'm sure. But I can't tell you all about that now.

Lucille Lee Stewart has been signed by William Fox to support William Russell in "Eastern Ho," which is now being photographed at the eastern studio of Fox Film corporation.

Miss Stewart has had a varied and successful career on the screen. Since she was signed by David Work Griffith for the old Biograph company at an insignificant salary she has devoted all her attention to the silent drama and has risen to stardom.

For more than two years she was a star with the Vitaphone company. Her most recent appearance was made in "The Perfect Lover," where she was the leading woman for Eugene O'Brien.

Miss Stewart was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and educated there at the public schools and Erasmus high school, and after leaving school appeared for a short time in vaudeville.

Mr. Griffith signed her to a contract, but later on, when he asked her to go to the Pacific coast studio, she refused. Her first appearance on the screen was made at the age of 16.

In "Eastern Ho," which Emmett J. Flynn is directing, Miss Stewart will be cast as a society girl, a type of role with which she is familiar, and in which she has done the best work of her career.

Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. "While" answers are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column. But all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individuals cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

THE DANGER OF WHY WORRY ABOUT IT?

A large, good natured, and no use at their doctors had a stroke of apoplexy and left this planet the other day. He was only fifty-five years old and had always considered himself a healthy man as such much.

Once there was a happy school teacher whose private reading had been misdirected. Somehow that teacher arrived at the conclusion that the civilized world is all wrong on the "germ theory," and consequently she argued that all the trouble and expense of isolating persons with contagious diseases, fumigating ships, quarantining passengers, and other wise protecting the public against disease, is a waste of money. Well, that is enough for her logic. She lived with a girl friend who had tuberculosis, and scorned the idea that such a disease was infectious. In due time the teacher's cheeks became still rosier, her eyes still brighter and—daisies sprang up above her. It was all wrong, of course, but the teacher did not know it. Her education in hygiene had not included the fundamental things like the multiplication table; it had started on high.

Human nature is unchangeable. Everybody who thinks all things he knows something about hygiene through instinct or intuition, without troubling to study the subject from the fundamentals up.

I receive letters almost every day from people who, theorizing away in the air, convince themselves they have discovered remarkable cures for incurable afflictions and they explain the theory of the method so clearly and plausibly that almost anybody but a doctor should grasp the idea. Why, as an actual fact, a gentleman wrote me in all seriousness a detailed method for reviving the dead, the only condition being that all the vital organs must be intact.

Tom, Dick and Harry, struck with an idea, commonly originate a company and proceed to market the idea—it may become some simple exercise, or some interesting thought, or even a lot of pseudo-scientific humbug about breathing. In a short time Tom, Dick and Harry are referred to as food specialists, or something impressive and newfangled, and are sending

She Married an Average Man

By ZOE BECKLEY.

I can scarcely eat or sleep, thinking about this New York plan. No one knows how I long to go east. Mother and dad are wedded in Greenville. But I can never remember a day when I didn't dream some wild dream of getting away from it. Mother used to say I must be a "changeling," for I seem utterly different from all the rest of the family. I think I'm an ancestral remnant sort of an odd life left over from some adventurous forbear.

Jim and I have talked the scheme over every night and morning for a week. My heart cries, "Go!" But my conscience says, "Wait!" Think it over well. For it seems the plan is Charles Bolton's. And no matter how much I reason about it I cannot bring myself to trust him.

A man who will stoop to the slimy little compliments he pays me whenever Jim's back is turned is not above business treacheries.

Yet he does nothing actually objectionable; nothing I can bring myself to tell him about. I did hint at it, but Jim chose not to understand. Now the question is, shall I assert myself? I think I've been more inclined to assert myself since that talk the other day with Mrs. East, of New York, and try to dissuade Jim from entering any partnership with Bolton. Or shall I try to think as Jim does, that he is a splendid business man and that this is Jim's big chance to launch out in his profession?

I am of a practical mind and there are some things I must find out

BRIGHT COLORED PLUMES TRIM FALL HATS

The hat is usually the first consideration in the fall wardrobe. One can wear the spring suit or frock for some time if only there is a velvet or plush hat to top it and give it the new look. Panna velvet is the popular thing for the early fall and winter hats and a brilliant colored plume is the vogue of the hour. This black panne velvet shape is made distinctive by a square placed bit of the hat is made of some rich brocade material or loud colored velvet.

These are some of the more outstanding features of the modes of the new season and most of them may be seen in the outfit pictured.

band's business. I shall know more about this man Bolton, too. And I shall have a definite understanding with Jim about my allowance.

There is no reason on earth, come to think of it, why my services in keeping a satisfactory home should not be recompensed just as Jim's services outside the home.

Escalloped Swiss Chard and Tomatoes—Boil the stems of two pecks Swiss chard until tender. Dice and add one-half can tomatoes (or one-half can tomatoes) and one onion. Put alternate layers of the above mixture and bread crumbs dotted with butter in casserole; bake until the top layer is delicate brown.

This serves eight or ten people. Shred Tomatoes—Line the bottom of a well-buttered earthen dish with sliced tomatoes. Make a good bread dressing as you would make it for roast chicken. Place the dressing over the tomatoes about one-half inch thick, and season with salt and pepper.

The tomatoes should be sprinkled lightly with sugar before covering with the dressing. Bake in a moderate oven until nicely browned.

Green Lima Beans and Corn—One pint of lima beans and one quart of sweet corn scraped from the cob. Cook in as little water as will keep from scorching, and when tender add salt, pepper, butter the size of an egg and one cup of rich sweet cream. Have ready one-half tablespoon flour made smooth in a little cold milk, and slightly thicken with this.

Poached Eggplant—Having peeled and sliced the eggplants, boil them in water with a tablespoon of salt until they are thoroughly cooked. Drain off the water, pour in sufficient milk to cover the slices, and add a few bits of butter rolled in flour. Let it simmer gently, shaking the pan over the fire till the sauce is thick, and stir in the beaten yolks of two or three eggs just before it is served.

One large eggplant, three large onions, four large ripe tomatoes, one sweet pepper, butter.

DISCOVERIES.
When Making Ice, sift the powdered sugar before using, as it's easier and also makes the icing smoother.

All Dishes which have been used for eggs should be washed in cold water first.

When Canning Tomatoes, be sure that no seeds are on the rubbers.

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

DID YOU EVER PAY YOUR DEBTS?

"What makes you look so happy to-night?" I asked of a friend. "Because I paid a debt today that I've owed for 21—no, 22 years," she said.

Of course, I didn't need to be told that it wasn't a money debt, but I would not be so mean as not to ask the question she was so evidently waiting for.

Do You Know Any Youngsters In This Class?

"It was a debt of happiness," she explained. "Maybe you don't know but when I was a little girl, although there were plenty of other children in our family, there wasn't much money for the little extra treats that a good many of our friends had. We never went to dancing school or on summer vacations, and I never went to the circus till I was grown up, nor to the theatre but once. And one of my little friends came over one Saturday morning that had started out to be just like the other 51 kids, and told me that her father and mother were going to take her in town to lunch and to the theatre, and had told her she could invite me."

"Of course, the unexpectedness was the last touch to make it into a fairy-godmother day. I can vaguely remember how mother hustled me into my best dress—it was a red plaid with velvet trimmings from my sister's last year hat—and how we met Mr. B. and went to a real restaurant (the first time that had ever happened to me) and then to the matinee! It was just a vaudeville to the rest of the audience."

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON. LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We would like your advice on some very difficult matters. We are a young lady aged 21 and a young man of the same age.

(1) When entering a Ford car, which, as you know, has only one door, should the man get in first and let the lady climb in, or should he help her in and climb over her?

(2) It is correct to write personal letters on office stationery?

(3) It is better for the man to get in the car first for a girl to get in afterward? Women have ceased to be helpless and find it perfectly convenient to climb into an automobile unassisted.

(4) It is not correct to write personal letters on office stationery.

(5) Either way is all right. Usually the girl wants to contribute too.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I was going with a girl whom I liked very much. After I had been in love with her she asserted that she was engaged to another, but if for some reason he would fail to marry her that she would marry me and that she cared for me as a brother and could do nothing else.

I know that he didn't marry her. Would it be proper for me to go back and after being treated as a brother?

CLOSE SHAVED.
Court the girl before you ask her again to marry you. Put upon her and to her place. When you have become close friends propose marriage again. If you were to ask her now without any preliminary courtship, doubtless she would refuse you again.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I met a girl a short time ago who is very beautiful.

I have taken her home several times, but I do not know whether she goes with any class or not. How shall I find out?

I love her very much. How shall I win her love?

Since the girl has let you take her home several times, it would seem that she likes you and would be glad to become further acquainted. Ask her to go with you about her going with anyone else. Unless she is engaged she is free to go with you, too.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 16. Is it right for men to wink at girls when they pass through a faculty? What do they mean by it?

No, men should not wink at girls. To wink at a girl shows a lack of respect for the girl and a lack of decency in the man. They do it to attract attention. Do not notice the wink.

Hungry Broiler Devours 738 Grains in 5 Minutes

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Benton, Ill.—The question of how many grains of wheat a hungry broiler will eat in five minutes was brought up at a meeting of ladies of the Baptist Mission Circle. Queens ranged from 50 to 500. The grains, which had previously been counted were given to the chicken, and to the amazement of all present the animal ate 738 grains in five minutes.

THE COW PUNCHER

"Thank you," said the old man, and there was something in his voice which may have been emotion or may have been the huskiness of the heavy drinker's throat. The girl gave him the proffered chair she saw in this old man's shreds of dignity which the less refined eye of his son had not distinguished by Dave's hand. The old man's face had not been so borne; an unfair load laid on a boy who had done nothing to deserve this punishment. The miser's face had not been so borne; an unfair load laid on a boy who had done nothing to deserve this punishment. The miser's face had not been so borne; an unfair load laid on a boy who had done nothing to deserve this punishment.

After the midday dinner Dave harnessed the team for the journey to the next afternoon, riding his own horse. It was quite sober now and his speech, although somewhat indelicate, was still able to pay to woman that respect which curbs the coarseness of a tongue for years subjected to little discipline. The next morning he saw Dave ride away leading a horse by his side. He did not return until evening, but when he came the horse carried a saddle.

The day was introductory to others that were to follow. Dave returned the next afternoon, riding his own horse.

Hopeless Diseases Can Not Be Cured by Doctors or Medicine

There are some diseases which are absolutely hopeless and past cure by any physician or medicine, but they may yet be palliated and a medicine, if it can not help in one case, it may help in another. To any one suffering from a disease a remission is a blessing, and a medicine that relieves or palliates a disease is of great benefit. We cannot guarantee to cure any disease with Number 40 For The Blood, but we quote word for word what the ingredients in 40 are recommended in the U. S. Dispensary and New American Materia Medica. In the treatment of blood troubles, an acknowledged remedy among all schools of physicians, removes the cause of disease and stimulates the removal of waste, thus inducing a new and healthy condition of the nervous system. Disorders of the nervous system demand this remedy, such as neuritis, chronic rheumatism, gouty conditions, malnutrition, auto-intoxication, constipation. Used with phenomenal success in eczema and skin diseases, it encourages the healing of ulcers, and in general disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and spleen. Prepared by J. C. Mendenhall, Evansville, Ind., 40 years a druggist. Sold by Peoples Drug Co.

horse and heavily laden with cigars, muzzling and snoring.
The following day it was decided that the automobile, which since the accident had lain undisturbed by the rain, should be brought to the ranch buildings. Dave harnessed his team and, instead of riding one of the horses, walked behind, driving by the reins and holding the reins of the girl, who had proclaimed her inability to steer the car.
With the aid of the team and Dave's larrikin the car was soon righted and was found to be none the worse for its deflection from the beaten track. Irene presided at the steering wheel, watching the road with great intensity and turning the wheel too far on each occasion, which gave to her course a somewhat wavy and undulating order, and she was forced to turn the wheel a better figure would be to compare it to that rolling motion affected by fancy skaters. However, the means of her direction corresponded with the mean of the trail and all went merrily until the stream was approached. Here was a rather steep descent and the car showed a sudden purpose to engage the horses in a contest of speed. She determined to use the foot-brake, a feat which was accomplished, under normal conditions, by pressing the foot firmly against the contraption somewhere beneath the steering-post. She shot a quick glance downward and, to her alarm, discovered not one but three contraptions, all apparently designed to receive the pressure of a foot—if one could reach them—and as similar as the steps of a stair. The car rolled forward, and she found herself in a predicament. She sat in the middle; the girl had put her feet on the seat beside her, and the swift water flowed by a few inches below. She was laughing merrily when Dave, very wet in parts, appeared on the bank.

"Well, I'm not wet, except for a little splashing," she said, "and you are. Does anything occur to you?"
Without reply he walked stolidly into the cold water, took her in his arms and carried her ashore. The fact was soon revealed and the car hauled to the ranch buildings without further mishap.
Later in the day he said to her, "Can you ride?"
"Some," she answered. "I have ridden city horses, but don't know about these ranch animals. But I would like to try if I had a saddle." "I have an extra saddle," he said. "But it's a trap. . . . They all ride that way here."

She made no answer and the subject was dropped for the time. But the next morning she saw Dave ride away leading a horse by his side. He did not return until evening, but when he came the horse carried a saddle.
"It's a straddle," he said when he drew up beside Irene. "But it's a girl's. I couldn't find anything else in the whole district for the time."

"I'm sure it will do splendidly—I can just stick on," she replied. But another problem was already in her mind. It appeared that she had not come to the ranch buildings without special clothing for riding, especially if it's a "straddle." She opened her lips to mention this, then closed them. She had been too close to trouble on her account. He had already spent a whole day scouring the country for a saddle. She would manage some way.

CHAPTER II
Doctor Hardy recovered from his injury as rapidly as could be expected, and while he chafed somewhat over spending his holidays under such circumstances, the time passed not unhappily.

A considerable acquaintanceship had sprung up between him and the senior Elden. The doctor, who had been in the district for many years, but in turning over their memories the two men found many links of association; third persons known to them from the past; places and houses common to their feet in early manhood; events of local history which each could recall, although from different angles. And Elden's grizzled head and stooping frame carried more experiences than could fill a dozen well-rounded city lives, and he had the story-teller's art, which seems to spell dramatic effect by a too strict adherence to fact. But no ray of conversation would he admit into the more personal affairs of his heart, or of a woman who had been his wife, and even when the talk turned on the boy he quickly withdrew it to another topic, as though the subject were dangerous and grizzled following such a diversion, had he betrayed himself into a whispered remark, an outbreak of feeling rather than a conversation.

"I've been alone so much," he said. "It seems I have never been anything but alone. And—sooner or later—it gets you." "You have the boy," ventured the doctor.

"No," he answered, almost fiercely. "That would be different. I have a son, but I haven't got him, and I can't get him. He despises me because I take too much at times." He paused as though wondering whether to go on, and then he heart insisted on its right to human sympathy. "No, it isn't that," he continued. "He despises me because he thinks I won't let him be his mother. He can't understand. I wanted to be good to her, to be close to her. Then I took to booze, as natural as a steer under the branding iron roars to drive his hurt. But boy don't understand. He despises me." Then after a long silence: "No matter. I despise myself."

The doctor placed his hand on his shoulder. But Elden was himself again. The curtain of his life, which he had drawn apart for a moment, he whisked together again rudely, almost viciously, and covered his confusion by plunging into a tale of how he had led a half-breed suspected of cattle-rustling on a little canter of ten miles with a horse about his neck and the other end tied to the saddle. "He ran well," said the old man, chuckling still at the reminiscence. "And it was lucky he did. It was a strong rope."

The morning after Dave had brought in the borrowed saddle Irene appeared in a sort of bloomer suit, somewhat wonderfully contrived from a spare skirt, and announced a willingness to risk life and limb on any horse that Dave might select for that purpose. He provided her with a dependable mount and their first journey taken along the principal trail, was accomplished without incident. It was the fortune of many others, plunging deeper into the fastness of the foothills and even into the passes of the very mountains themselves. His patience was infinite and although there were no silk trappings to his courtesy, it was a very genuine and manly deference he paid her. She was quite sure that he would at any moment give her his horse, if needed to defend her from injury—and accept the transaction as a matter of course. His physical endurance was inexhaustible, and his knowledge of the country and the trail seemed to her almost uncanny. He read every sign of footprint, leaf, water and sky with unerring insight. He had no knowledge of books, and she had at first thought him ignorant, but as the days went by she found in him a mine of wisdom which shamed her recent inane question.

Dinner Stories

Little Dennis, out for a walk with mother, noticed a poor, ragged little urchin.

"Yes, dear," said mother. "That poor little boy has no father to give him a cent, and things like you have wouldn't you like to do something for him? Wouldn't you like to give him your rabbit?"

Dennis thought a moment, and then suggested: "I'd like to give him father."

When President Wilson appeared in Indianapolis last week the dispatch stated that the introductory remarks of the governor of Indiana were so very much extended that the big crowd grew impatient and noisy and called for the president.

It has been remarked on numerous occasions that there is not time when a man's discretion is more apt to be well shown than when he is presiding officer with an introduction on his hands. It is related of Gladstone that on some special occasion he was asked to speak in the introduction where the presiding officer grew so tiresome of his introduction that the patience of the old statesman was entirely exhausted.

CAMPAGN NEWS ITEMS

Increased interest in the Wonderful Prizes and Splendid Cash Bonuses offered both Churches and Retailers is growing every day. Many Big Increases in Points are recorded this week compared to the last announcement. Like so many former Campaigns, the last two months decide the winners of the Big Prizes. This Campaign seems to be no exception.

This year, for the first time since the first Campaign four years ago, Protestant Churches have taken a Big Lead from the very start. As a result they are in the lead not only in Points, but in Bonuses completed—over all Catholic and other Organizations.

Every Church desiring to earn the largest possible Prize or Bonus of money should divide up the work between three Campaign Committees.

First: Bonus Committee.—This Committee should devote its entire time to securing the largest possible Bonus—completing as many items in Class "E" as possible.

Second: Bank and Tire Committee.—This Committee should secure the largest possible number of new Savings Accounts for the American Exchange Bank or its Branches, and sell the largest Total Value in Cupples Tires. There is no better plan made and they are guaranteed by E. G. Godfrey & Sons Co. for 7,500 miles—25 percent larger guarantee than most other tires. Adjustments promptly made.

Third: Big Sales Committee.—This Committee should devote its entire time to calling on Retailers with whom their Church members trade, and see that sufficient Orders are given these Dealers to make it profitable for the Dealer to purchase sufficient Campaign Products to earn many Extra Points. Bonus Committee should also interest as many dealers as possible to give their Church full support. Big Sales of Campaign Products should be made to Boarding Houses, Restaurants, Factory cafeterias, etc.

Holy Angel Church of West Bend, jumped from Fourth to First place among Catholic Churches in District No. 3, outside Milwaukee. They now have a good lead for the District Prize of $100,000. St. Raphael's of Madison, which was in the Lead last week, is now in Second Place.

The three Leading Protestant Churches as published last week, still retain their position in District No. 3—outside Milwaukee. The Federated Church of Hartford, however, advances from Fifth to Fourth Place over Immanuel, Friends Reformed of West Bend.

It is apparent that quite a number of Churches will win more than $2,000.00 each during this Campaign. Every Church that wins a $1,000.00 Bonus can count on winning a large number of Manufacturers' Special Prizes besides Big Earnings for new Savings Accounts, First Fur-ture, etc.

Many Catholic Parishes are overlooking the Big Cash Prizes they can so easily win with such little effort during the next two months. Those who seize the splendid opportunities now presented, will be richly paid in Cash by the Manufacturers at the close of the Campaign. Money earned in the Campaign is EXTRA MONEY which otherwise will be earned by other churches or Retailers in the neighborhood of these Churches.

SOX OUTFIELD HAS EDGE ON THAT OF CINCINNATI REDS

[By Associated Press.]
Chicago, Sept. 30.—Collectively and individually the outfield of the Chicago White Sox and the Cincinnati Reds, which will put their prowess in the world's series, ranks among the best in the major leagues and their work undoubtedly will be watched with keen interest during the championship contests.

Considered broadly, the men who will form the last lines of defense for the contending teams measure up to all the requirements sought in outfielders.

Defensively they are sure and quick judges of fly balls, steady on grounders past the infield, possess powerful arms and are quick decision makers when there is a choice of one or more plays. Offensively some of the greatest hitters in baseball are included.

But if the records made by the various men this season may be taken as an index, the outfielders of the White Sox have the edge on their opponents.

The mention of such men as Felsch, Jackson, and Neale, veterans of the 1917 world's series against the New York Giants, coupled with those of Roush, the leading slugger of the Red aggregation, make a quick decision in this matter a simple matter.

Already there is talk that Roush will exhibit the mighty Jackson, and that Felsch and Liebold will not compare with Neale, Magee and Duncan.

Duncan is a fair batter but a fast fielder. It is hitting will not compare with that of Jackson, who is toppling the White Sox, with an average which has been hovering around .350 the latter part of the season. Duncan has been hitting about .250, while his fielding average has been around .952. That of Jackson has been around .971.

There is some doubt just how the outfielders will line up for the opening game. Manager Gleason will have Jackson in left field, Neale in center, and Roush in right. He will be assigned either to John Collins or Liebold, the choice for this position resting upon whether Manager Moran sends a right-handed pitcher to the mound in the opening game tomorrow.

The Reds will have Duncan, their new man, in left field, Neale in center, and Roush in right. Neale will be assigned to the right field position. However, Manager Moran may decide to shift these players, and may send Sherwood Magee, a veteran, to the out garden in the opening conflict.

There should be an interesting struggle between the veteran Jackson for the White Sox and Duncan, Moran's rookie. Duncan never has been under any such strain as this kind, but his work since joining the Red aggregation has been of such high class that he has displaced the veteran Magee, and has taken the place of a good run. Jackson's batting has been one of the big assets of the Gleason tribe. He has a wonderful strong arm which has cut many a run off at the plate. He can cover more ground than his younger rival, and is fielding .971 to Duncan's .952, the averages being those of the first part of September.

Roush will be pitted against Felsch in the center. Both these players have thousands of admirers for each is one of the stars of his league, and a real battle is expected. Roush, who once tried to make the White Sox team but was found wanting, has climbed to the ladder of fame and today is one of the best hitters in the major leagues, having an average of more than .300 almost the entire season. He is a good fielder, with a mark around .957, has a good arm and covers a lot of ground. This will be his first world's series.

Felsch, on the other hand, suffered a slump in his batting this year, but has been a dangerous man in the pinch and has boosted his batting mark to about .259, while his fielding average for the greater part of the year is .971. He is rated by many experts as the greatest outfielder in the American league. Felsch is a player who can go to any corner of the field and catch a fly ball, and is a powerful arm. Toward the close of the season Felsch showed signs of recovering his batting eye, though a much during the first part of September was .319.

In comparison, these two players will about break even, as when one outdistances the other in hitting, the other will outfield his rival.

The right field position seems to favor the Chicago aggregation. Liebold, Chicago's lead out, is one of the hardest men in the league to pitch to, and is a patient waiter at the plate. He will invariably make work for a pitcher to count two and three, and when they cut the plate he is a capable batter. He is fast on the field, has a strong arm and is a brainy player, and will have no trouble in catching a fly ball.

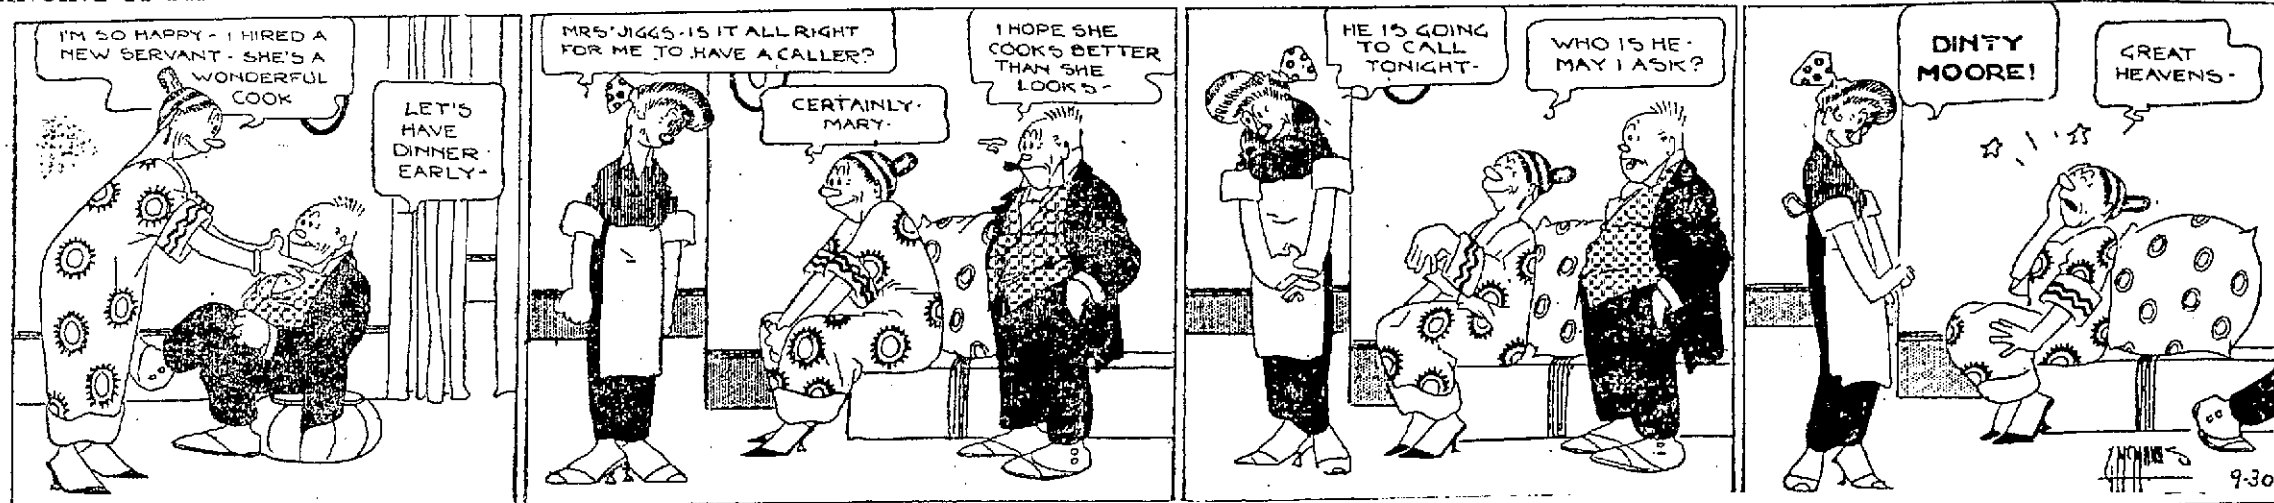

Neale, on the other hand, while covering in the right field garden may experience some difficulty in feeling his way in the White Sox game, owing to the shadows which have affected many American leaguers. On his home grounds, however, he will have no advantage over his White Sox rivals.

Liebold has been hitting at a .293 clip while Neale's mark has been around .247. Infielder Neale has hung up an average for the greater part of the season of .951, while Liebold's mark is .928.

Collins in right field, the White Sox have John Collins, one of the fastest and surest fielders in the game. "Shano" has been with the Sox 10 years, and is a hardened player. He is one of the greatest men in baseball and dangerous at bat and on the bases, although his batting average does not indicate that he is a heavy hitter. "Shano" has been crowding the hit for about .282 and has been fielding around .959.

Stange, the Red's veteran substitute outfielder, has been hitting around .225 and fielding .953. The White Sox also have Eddie Murphy as an alternate. However, he may not break into the outfield, but may be injected into the game as a pinch hitter, a role which has successfully filled many times this season. Murphy, like Liebold, is a hard man to pitch to, and will worry almost any pitcher. When on the bases he works a pitcher more than any player in the league and he may break up a game whenever he is sent into the fray. He has been batting better than .475 for the greater part of the

BRINGING UP FATHER

BOWLERS TO FORM LOCAL ORGANIZATION

Janesville bowlers will meet tomorrow evening at the Dorrbacker alleys, North Main street, to organize the local bowling association, elect officers and once again become affiliated with the American Bowling Congress and the Wisconsin Bowling Association.

Lack of interest the past two years due in a great measure to the fact that a large percentage of the membership has entered military service, resulted in the local association losing recognition in organized bowling circles.

Appreciating the cause Secretary Abe Langtry of the American Bowling Association has personally invited the local bowlers to re-organize and renew their relations with the State and National associations and for that purpose a meeting has been called for Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Dorrbacker alleys.

With the influx of new talent, Janesville should boast of some of the best bowling teams in the state this winter and plans have already been laid for an industrial league.

Every bowler who has the interests of the game at heart is urged to attend the meeting Wednesday evening and help perfect an organization that will not only place Janesville on the bowling map, but will swing the state tournament here within the next two years.

FIRST SPORT EXTRA APPEARS TOMORROW

Within 20 minutes after the close of the first game of the world's series at Cincinnati tomorrow, the Gazette's sporting extra will appear on the street, containing the full box score and summary together with a brief story of the game featuring the pitching and batting stars. The extra will not be for the regular city and mail circulation.

This service will be repeated each afternoon throughout the series with the exception of Sunday when final returns of the game will be bulletined at the Gazette office. The games will start at 2 o'clock in both Chicago and Cincinnati.

A duplicate of the series will be started in Terpsichorean hall beginning tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock on an electric scoreboard. The board will be operated by Jimmy Trainer who has been running similar boards at the auditorium in Chicago for several years. The board was erected in the hall today.

Mike O'Dowd wins another fight. Tersey City, Sept. 30.—Mike O'Dowd, a middleweight, middleweight boxing champion, outboxed Augie Ratner of New York, former national A. A. A. middleweight title holder, in an eight round bout last night. Each weighed in at under 155 pounds at 3 o'clock as agreed upon and the ringside weights were announced. O'Dowd scored 154 and Ratner 154 pounds. O'Dowd took the honors in five rounds, Ratner with one even.

With a snappy left jab Ratner withstood the champion's rushes in the first and second rounds, making him miss frequently. Ratner had the better of these rounds. O'Dowd started the third with a straight left that sent his opponent's head back and then forced Ratner to break ground.

The fourth round was jammed to the limit, and the congestion grew greater as the day advanced and the special trains began to arrive. With over one of the 100 seats sold, the unlucky applicants for tickets were willing to pay almost any price for a seat for the opening game.

LYNCH AND BURMAN STAGE GREAT DRAW

Philadelphia, Sept. 30.—In one of the most thrilling bouts between bantamweights ever witnessed in a boxing ring, Joe Lynch, New York, and Joe Burman, Chicago, fought each other to a standstill last night. In view of the fact that both boxers are aspirants for the bantamweight title, and as both maintained such a terrific pace that nothing decisive was accomplished, a draw would be an entirely just decision.

There have been fights and fights, but last night's scramble, when Lynch and Burman fought to a draw, was a real battle. Lynch, who was victorious in the bantamweight supremacy, took the golden apple, the silver-headed cane, or whatever else is symbolic of class.

There was not an idle second during the encounter. A season's boxing was crowded into one six-round bout. A close analysis of the contest would show that if a decision had to be rendered on a hairline edge, Lynch would get the edge. Many, however, would not agree to give one an iota of advantage over the other.

This angle to the fight was effectively summed up by a ringside spectator when he said, "They traveled so fast that I don't know who won." Lynch fought in the same manner that brought him glory in the A. E. B. The first round closed with Burman bleeding freely from the nose from a wicked right smash. Burman retaliated in the second session by cutting Lynch's lips. No one expected to see Burman fight Lynch in the manner the Chicagoan waged in.

In the fourth Lynch shot over two pretty rights that landed squarely. In the fifth Burman got his arm fastened around the rope. Then the spectators were treated to a weird exhibition. Holding onto the hemp for dear life, Burman met Lynch's salutes with wicked right uppercuts to the chin.

In the semi-final Frankie Daily of Pittsburgh defeated Johnny Tym of this city.

“Ever Occur to You?” says the Good Judge

That it's foolish to put up with an ordinary chew, when it doesn't cost any more to get real tobacco satisfaction.

Every day more men discover that a little chew of real good tobacco lasts longer and gives them real contentment.

There's nothing like it.

When the Truck Train Comes to Town

Look for the Service

“Highway Special” — the Sensation of the Show

This is the truck that has won the approval of practical farmers all along the route.

This is the truck that Charles Guernsey, chief engineer of the Service Motor Truck Co., designed after consultation with hundreds of farmers and scores of state and federal experts.

This is the truck that embodies every practical feature that farmers require in a truck—strength with light weight—speed, dependability, economy.

This is the truck that may be used for hauling grain, fruits, hay, live-stock. The special body is designed particularly to meet every requirement on the farm or on the highway.

Watch for the Truck Train

Don't fail to see the SERVICE “Highway Special”—size it up carefully—compare it with other trucks—observe the many special features that make this the ideal truck for every farm purpose—ask the SERVICE man to tell you all about it and explain just why it more fully meets farm requirements than any truck ever built.

GRAND CIRCUIT NAG IS KILLED IN RACE

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 30.—The opening day of the meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association furnished as the feature the 2 year old division of the futurity, in which Natalie the Great was first choice.

In the first heat the favorite went away in the lead and won with Mr. Dudley forcing her to her limit. In the second heat the black gelding forced the issue and when the filly went to a break he came on to win by a length. In the third mile field was well bunched with Natalie the Great leading on the far turn, where Dr. Dudley choked down and falling into the fence was killed by a sharp point of a plow and going down the Star which had gained on the leaders in the stretch.

Day Star won the fourth heat easily with the original favorite second. The time for the four heats constitutes a world's record for trotters of that age.
